

Behind my Art work

The subtropical life that developed into a mollusk in the natural sea bottom, or the sea hare-like skin, has a metabolism, adhering to the adjoining stones and rocks, or algae in the sea bottom,

The texture of the surface of the object expresses the skin color of the creatures living in the subtropical islands, such as marine plants and sea cucumbers.

I cannot help feeling that the morphology becomes mysterious only when the mathematical principle of molding nature and the wavelength of my own intuition resonate.

This work will let you take a peek at an amusing life that wriggles elegantly or fascinatingly now and then.
